A delegation of Chicago businessmen, known as the Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace, picket the White House. Their signs are intended to form an "Annual Report to the Stockholders of the United States," a traditional business method of communicating with the public, showing the losses suffered in men, material and money in the course of the war. (UPI)

Money Cuts Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 19 per cent, $384.3 million cut in new funds for the Department of Housing and Urban Development was recommended today by the House Appropriations Committee.

The $1.65 billion earmarked for HUD in an omnibus $14.9 billion appropriation bill sent to the House for consideration next week reflects deep cuts in funds for model cities and urban renewal programs.

The over-all reduction of $473.1 million represented only a 3 per cent cut from the $15.3 billion requested by President Nixon.

Included in the bill financing 19 agencies is $150,000 to start work on an official residence for the vice president authorized three years ago at a cost of $750,000.

In one major area the committee voted more than Nixon sought, boosting his $7.67 billion request for the Veterans Administration to the $7.7 billion requested earlier by former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

It said the amended Nixon budget "does not adequately provide the needed and required resources for the full veterans programs."

A minor money cut, but one likely to stir up a major fuss, was the $7.5 million trimmed from the $10.5 million requested for HUD's fair housing programs.

Congress appropriated $2 million for these activities last year. The committee said the $3 million it approved was a 50 per cent increase and should "permit orderly progress to be made in meeting the objectives of the basic legislation."

Major allotments to HUD included: —Low-rent public housing contributions, $473.5 million, the amount requested.

—Basic water and sewer facilities grants, $135 million, no cut.

—Model cities development programs, $500 million, a cut of $175 million.

News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee completed Thursday its formal approval of the income surtax extension, with a hint of slightly increased Democratic support.

ALMA, Wis. (AP) — A barge that leaked thousands of gallons of oil into the upper Mississippi River has been partially flooded, preventing further spillage.

The craft was turned into the current Wednesday so water could seep into four damaged compartments and thus trap the remaining oil in the upper part of the areas.

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Riot insurance for the City of Berkeley is being canceled on grounds it is "a particularly bad risk," says City Atty. Robert Anderson.

He announced Wednesday that a Swiss firm had sent a letter saying the company would not honor personal and property liability claims, effective June 27.

Allied Troops Fight Reds Within Capital

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces launched six attacks on the city of Tay Ninh 50 miles northwest of Saigon today and about 300 Viet Cong guerrillas and North Vietnamese broke into an outlying district battling allied troops in the streets.

About 1,000 South Vietnamese civilians fled their homes.

The fighting continued into the night.

The outlying district hit hardest by the enemy is just north of a temple of the Cao Dai sect and is three miles from the heart of the city proper. Tay Ninh is 12 miles east of the Cambodian border.

The assault was the biggest so far in the enemy's summer campaign.

Initial reports said nearly 200 enemy troops had been killed in the string of fights around the city. Allied casualties were reported light. Figures were not available because of the continuing fight.

Elsewhere, North Vietnamese commandos blasted their way into a U.S. artillery base in the north; 63 rocket attacks hit allied towns and bases overnight — the highest number of shellings since June 6 — and two Viet Cong terrorists assassinated a Saigon city councilman.

Conflicting Views Held On Local School Action

Conflicting opinions on the Sedalia public school Board of Education action rejecting two proposals by the Missouri Human Rights Commission as a solution to integration problems in Sedalia indicate the problem has not yet been solved.

Oscar Lawson, chairman of the legal regness committee of the local NAACP Chapter, said, "We read with great regret the action taken by the school board, and now there is nothing we at the local level can do to force the board to comply with the Supreme Court decisions on integration, thus we will have to turn the matter over to our national NAACP officers and later take whatever action the national organization recommends."

Lawson indicated Thursday morning he is in the process of contacting national NAACP officials for advice.

On the other hand, Mrs. Morris Walker, president of the Sedalia Council of the Parent Teachers Association, said since the board took action on the matter and rejected the proposals, she had had many phone calls, and everyone she talked to favored the board's action.

"None of these people are against integration as such, but they do object to the proposals, suggested by the Human Rights Commission, which would split up families, sending the children to different schools, according to grade," Mrs. Morris said.

Under the proposals, Mrs. Morris said, one woman told her that her three children would be in different schools, creating transportation and other problems.

Rev. Marvin Albright, chairman on the Sedalia Human Rights Commission, said he has not yet contacted other members of the commission, but posed his own reaction to the board's action in the form of questions.

"Why are there no boundaries set for the Hubbard, Mark Twain and Jefferson Schools?" Rev. Albright asked.

Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, said in the letter of rejection to the Missouri commission that all of the pupils in the three school districts have a choice of attending either of the three schools.

Albright said that if the pupils in these three school areas can attend a school of their choice, why not allow all of the pupils in Sedalia to attend the school of their choice. This in itself is discrimination against both black and white pupils, Rev. Albright said.

"Why has the school board been so reluctant for the past 15 years in facing up to this problem, which has been here all of the time?" Rev. Albright asked.

"Why have children, both black and white, not had a chance to get rid of their fears of each other, through integration in grade schools, before they enter high school?" was the final question Rev. Albright indicated would need an answer.

Lawson said he believes children in his neighborhood are being taught to hate and taught to believe they cannot get fair treatment in an integrated school. He said he

Vote of Confidence For College Efforts

Despite reports to the contrary, efforts at State Fair Community College to establish a training program for the Permaneer Corp., received a sound vote of confidence from company officials Thursday.

Harry Yepsen, a vice-president of the company, told the Sedalia Democrat-Capital there had been no discussion between the college and the company involving the firm's alleged concern over possible "leakage" of information on production processes.

Yepsen said there was no foundation for the reports. "Everything is progressing well," he said.

"As a matter of fact, we were so pleased by the college's proposal that we invited the school's officials to visit our plants to help them establish a possible training program," he said.

The latest edition of "The Missouri Harbinger Magazine" included a story on Permaneer. The story said that there had been some attempts at "industrial espionage" in order to obtain data on Permaneer's lamination processes.

Yepsen said that this report was true. He added, however, that attempts at "industrial espionage" were not unusual. Most major manufacturers, he said, experienced the same thing.

He stressed that there was "absolutely no connection" between the magazine story and references made to State Fair Community College.

Yepsen said that the college's proposal "was the first one of its type we've ever encountered and we couldn't be more pleased with it."

Prosecution In Cemetery Case Dropped

Magistrate Court dismissed Thursday the case against Allen Eugene Whittall, Gary Jenkins, Otto Hall, and William D. Samson for misusing the burial grounds at South Fork Cemetery April 11.

Mrs. E. H. Williams, president of the South Fork Cemetery Association, and Mrs. Melvin Lane, secretary of the association, asked in court that the four not be prosecuted since they had restored the damage and made a contribution to the perpetual care fund of the cemetery.

Both women said that they saw no useful purpose in prosecution. On this basis the case was dismissed.

The charges stemmed from the destruction or damaging of 21 tombstones at the cemetery, damaging the entrance gates and tables, and for using the cemetery for a beer party, according to Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

Cease-Fire Is Urged By Muskie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has urged President Nixon to take a new initiative toward ending the Vietnam war by proposing a cease-fire.

The Maine Democrat said in an interview though he supports peace efforts being made by the President, the time has come for a fresh approach.

Additionally, the 1968 vice presidential nominee said, a proposal by former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford to withdraw 100,000 troops this year from Vietnam "would show that we are really serious about negotiations."

But Muskie said, "I think the President should propose a cease-fire. It would involve some risks, of course, but if we are ever going to end the war we will have to take risks."

"Each side would regard it risky to stop fighting. The Viet Cong would be likely to regard it as diminishing its influence in any settlement and Saigon might think it would downgrade its political position."

"But if the President offered a cease-fire, it would put the monkey on the backs of the Communists and might prod them to move forward in the Paris talks."

Muskie said the withdrawal of 25,000 American troops seems to have had little or no effect on Hanoi's intransigence at Paris.

But he added that he is no arm-chair general and it is difficult to know how many troops could be pulled out under present conditions.

Muskie conceded search and destroy missions might be necessary to hold down casualties sustained by U.S. troops if they fought only on the defensive.

However, he said what he is interested in is holding fighting to a level that will not dilute the credibility of American peace overtures.

Boeing Is Near End Of Program

Employees of the Boeing Co., are scheduled to wind up work on a power modification program for Minuteman II missiles in this area by the latter part of the month, a representative of the company said today.

Of the original 78 trailers located at Heritage Village Mobile Home Park, on Thompson Blvd., 26 have been "deactivated," with the remaining 52 scheduled to follow the same route by Aug. 22.

Most of the Boeing families located here are scheduled for reassignment after completion of work in this area.

Bill Shumake, owner of the mobile home park said extensive improvements are planned for the site.

Shumake said that originally Heritage Village had space for 304 units. The number will be reduced to about 250 units, he said, "to give people more land and a nicer environment for mobile home living."

Despite the "Boeing trailer park" label generally applied to the area, Shumake said, plans call for continued operation of the park as a private business. He said Boeing did not have an interest in the park.

Among the improvements considered are a new entrance, improved streets, extensive landscaping and general "reconditioning" of the park, Shumake said.

Says US Should Recall Combat Troops by 1970

NEW YORK (AP) — Clark M. Clifford says that in view of changes in the world situation, the United States can and should reduce the fighting in Vietnam and, by the end of 1970, withdraw all ground combat troops.

Despite Handicap, Sedalian Enjoys Beauty of Flowers

By Hazel Lang

Growing, by touch, the beautiful flowers that he never sees, is something that Brooks Bapple, in his world of darkness, has been doing for years.

To hear him talk one would think he had seen the rather ugly shade of red poppy that he had crossed with the dark red poppy to create a blossom of a still lovelier dark red. Or that he knew the exact brilliant blues of Brooks said that he had about 20 different named varieties, shades of reds, pinks and other colors, one called White Christmas. He has Dutch varieties he bought years ago. One he doesn't care too much for, though, because it blooms only every other year. The seedlings of the amaryllis form small bulbs, he said.

Some of the leaves were treated with colchicine which is used to create new plant varieties. This, also, said

Lilies are? he questioned, and, of course we did.

"This one," said Bapple, "is purple and it makes seed. This one is red, this one orange, this is another purple, here are a light yellow and a white." He touched each one as he named the color. None of them were yet in bloom.

"But the magic lilies have always been pink," we commented.

"Yes," Brooks said, "that is why mine are different. They are in other colors."

Brooks lost many of the amaryllis one year when he was away for the winter. Someone broke out some of the windows of the greenhouse and they froze. He had bought three amaryllis in 1952 that were Holland-grown, one red, one pink and one white, from which he took more than a thousand seedlings. All of these were lost.

"You wouldn't think that people would do such things to a blind man," Brooks commented, "but recently they have been taking my vegetables and flowers."

Brooks Bapple, who for many years had the little store in the courthouse, started losing his sight in October of 1916. He went to many doctors and many hospitals, but nothing, at that time, could be done to prevent his blindness. They didn't know then what was wrong, but today successful operations are performed on people who have the same thing, Brooks stated.

When his sight first began to fail he spaded and hoed and made gardens for people. He raised vegetable plants and sold them but after the railroad strike in 1922 too many of the strikers were growing vegetable plants and selling them for much less money than he could sell them, so he turned to growing flowers. In the 1930's he wasn't able to sell flowers because of the depression years and flowers were something people could do without.

At the end of World War I, Brooks said, he worked at the State Fair Floral Company, but Dr. J. E. Cannaday, who owned it, was afraid when he found that he could not see that he would get hurt there.

In his own greenhouse and garden Brooks seems to know every inch of the ground, every flower, every seedling, even every seed, and just where it is. At first he used aluminum edging around his outside beds but he kept stepping on it and mashing it down. Now he has thin concrete blocks. He works with a trowel and his fingers to keep the weeds down and to cultivate his flowers.

There are many peonies at one side of the yard and in the back a thriving vegetable garden, lilies of different kinds and perennials. He still sells plants.

Brooks lives at the old Bapple home place started by his grandfather, Absalom McVey, a Pettis County pioneer, who died just after the foundation of the house was built. Living there, too, and loving the flowers, of which they often take pictures, are his three sisters, Helen, Margaret and Hortense.

And so, Brooks goes on growing his flowers, noting their growth and seeing their beauty through his sensitive fingers.

Growing by Touch

Brooks Bapple is shown in his greenhouse with the flowers he grows by touch. Blind for many years, he specializes in amaryllis, of which he has many varieties. He has hybridized some himself to create new variations.

the Connecticut Yankee delphinium he has never seen growing sturdily along with other flowers and vegetables.

In his greenhouse are amaryllis in various stages. The seed bed is divided by aluminum edging, each part a different variety, and all labeled. Then there is a section of small seedlings, the larger plants that are blooming size and at the side the older plants, some with buds, some with seed pods.

Brooks, is used for heart ailments. The colchicine is mixed with an ingredient that is used to make face cream and then applied to the leaves of the plants.

In the greenhouse, too, were peonies growing from seeds which were a year old, and also lily seedlings.

On the floor to one side were flats of Magic Lilies.

Brush With Disaster

Claudia Mullikin, 25, Pacifica, Calif., wound up in this precarious position astride an I-beam over a 150-foot-deep excavation when she missed a freeway off-ramp. Firemen rescued her from the car. She suffered contusions of the forehead and "emotional upset." (UPI)

Scientific Group Endorses Nixon's Plan to Study CBW

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new organization of scientists critical of the nation's supersecret chemical and biological warfare arsenal has reacted with unreserved enthusiasm to President Nixon's order for a full review of all CBW programs.

"I think that's one of the best things that's happened in a long while," Yale University biologist Dr. Arthur W. Galston said after the White House Tuesday announced a sweeping reappraisal of whether development and testing of CBW agents is necessary and proper.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also announced that the 1925 Geneva protocol designed to curb chemical and biological warfare will be re-examined. The United States promoted the document 44 years ago but still has not ratified it.

Nixon's review, to be conducted by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the State and Defense departments, came after a rising congressional and public outcry. The concern was spurred by the death of some 6,000 sheep near a nerve gas testing ground in Utah last year and the Army's plans—since delayed—to ship 27,000 tons of obsolete chemical-laden bombs overland by train and dump them into the sea.

The congressional chorus of protest began as a one-man crusade by Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, a third-term Democrat from Buffalo, N.Y. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee then held hearings, and Ziegler said the entire subject was explored in past National Security Council meetings.

The NSC will receive the results of the new study. Gerard Smith, director of the arms control agency, wrote McCarthy Tuesday the review will be detailed. "Within the U.S. government, the control of chemical and biological weapons is a subject of major concern," he added.

McCarthy said he was pleased with the review plans and said he thought they would lead to a resubmission of the Geneva protocol, which he, Sen. J. W. Fulbright and 35 congressmen are requesting in a resolution.

Scientists worried about chemical-biological warfare formed the Scientist's Committee on Chemical and Biological Warfare last December during a professional meeting in Dallas. They decided the group's most pressing objective should be to begin a comprehensive scientific study of the "ecological and sociological effects of the use of CBW agents in Vietnam."

He also condemned the use of riot-control gases to flush the enemy from caves and tunnels in Vietnam, contending a substantial number of people have been killed because lethal amounts were used.

The Geneva protocol, he said, forbids the use of all gases, making no distinction between lethal and nonlethal ones. "We have thoroughly violated the Geneva protocol in Vietnam," he said.

He offered his group's cooperation in the Nixon review and said he personally hoped it would include Vietnam.

Hall Points to Need For Housing, Manpower

With the coming of the new Permaneer Corporation, which expects to be in operation shortly after the first of the year with the employment of 200 people, the expansion of an existing industry, and other new industrial prospects interested, there will be a need for more manpower and more housing in Sedalia within the next year or so, William H. Hall, industrial director, told the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting was held at the First State Savings building with the president, Thomas T. Keating, presiding.

Hall pointed out that there is a shortage of manpower here and that is good, much better than having more than could be employed. Some industries, he said, will need highly skilled employees.

Dr. Marvin Fielding, dean of vocational education at State Fair Community College, who is a director on the chamber industrial committee, stated that the college would have a number of programs by the fall of 1971 to turn out workers in various skills. They have such a program now, but by that time the college will have the facilities to train 200 people a year for jobs in needed skills.

Keating remarked that he felt the planning for training and housing should be turned over to the industrial committee for study. Members of the committee are Dr. Fielding, Clinton Black and Robert Mason.

Hall showed a film on the Permaneer Corporation's operation in other places, and the Chamber board became the first to endorse, as a group, the passage of the general obligation bonds which will be voted on in early July.

Charles K. Lawrence, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, announced that the Chamber has gained three new memberships, Crawford Insurance, Kenzie Miller Real Estate and Julie Ann Fabrics. Also, Lawrence stated, the Missouri State Bank has increased its memberships from one to five.

Lawrence also told of the silver trays that will be presented by the Chamber at the Midwest Stud and Ram Show and Sale to be held here Friday.

Donald G. Callis, director of the agricultural and marketing committee, told of the 4-H clubs' livestock show which will be held at the fairgrounds July 22, after which the top animals will be sold at auction at 7:30 p.m. The Chamber has always assisted in getting buyers for these animals, Callis said, and anyone buying will be assured of high quality meat.

Callis also reported on Dairy Day, with LeRoy Van Dyke featured at the evening show and the crowning of the queen. All were very pleased with the success of Dairy Day, Callis said.

Ralph Huff, retail merchants committee, told of plans for State Fair Market Days, Aug. 6, 7 and 8, the weekend before the starting of the fair. Huff stressed the good cooperation of all the merchants in all parts of town in this project.

The committee decided to have the Christmas parade at 10 a.m. on Dec. 6.

Attending the meeting were: Thomas T. Keating, president; Bill Burkholder, second vice-president; Charles K. Lawrence, secretary-manager; Ms. Vivian E. Warren, treasurer; Dr. Marvin Fielding, Robert Mason, Clinton Black, J. L. Mathewson, Ralph Huff, Donald Callis, Bob McDonald and J. E. Mitchell, directors.

See No Threat from Liberals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts by liberal Democrats to form their own Senate bloc under Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's banner don't pose a threat to the regular leadership machinery, according to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

Mansfield says the move by the liberals is "no different than what has been going on for years."

"I approve of their efforts," he said. "But the Democratic Policy Committee will be the determining factor for the party in the Senate — it will be the real power base of our party in the Senate."

There is clear evidence that Kennedy, the assistant Democratic leader and regarded a front runner for the party's 1972 presidential nomination, was embarrassed by published reports of a recent session of liberals he called at the urging of Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa. Kennedy is understood to have assured Mansfield no attempt would be made to undercut his leadership.

For his part, Hughes reported regretfully in a separate interview he does not expect the group of a dozen or more liberals to accept his recommendation that they issue periodic public policy statements from time to time.

"I think we ought to make such statements," he said. "But the majority opinion in our first meeting seemed to be against it."

Instead, Hughes said he hopes the liberals can improve communications between each other so they can present a solid front on issues.

He disclaimed any intent to challenge Mansfield's party leadership or to go around the Policy Committee.

"I don't think there's a Democrat who isn't for Mike 100 per cent," Hughes said. "There is no challenge to his leadership."

Mansfield noted that liberals are well represented on the policy committee.

At least nine of them, including Kennedy, Hughes and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the 1968 vice presidential nominee, are on the committee.

He said that as far as he is concerned, the committee will make no policy pronouncements on what should be nonpartisan issues. He cited the Safeguard missile defense system as one of these.

Accidents

A hit and run accident was reported to police Wednesday by Carl Dedrick, 1615 South Engineer. Dedrick's 1957 Plymouth was parked at the above address, where it was struck by another car around 10 a.m. The left rear fender was damaged.

Robert Lee Reader, LaMonte, apparently lost control of his 1967 Chevrolet pickup truck and drove into a ditch on Route Y about one half mile west of Highway 127 at 2 a.m. Thursday. Reader was at first admitted to Bothwell Hospital for medical observation and was dismissed at 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

Robert K. Harms, Higginsville, suffered a broken left ankle, broken right leg, and sprained right wrist in a fall at a strip mine near Windsor Wednesday night.

The incident occurred when a group of boys decided to go swimming in the mine. Harms was standing on the edge

Stain Removal

Chances are that the homemaker suddenly faced with a stain will have a better chance of successfully removing it if she has advance knowledge of stain removal techniques and uses that knowledge promptly.

A bulletin from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, "Removing Stains from Fabrics: Home Methods," prepared by textile chemists in USDA's Agricultural Research Service, includes directions for removing more than 160 specific stains.

The authors say that a fully-prepared homemaker has 4 types of stain removers on hand, absorbent materials, soaps and detergents, solvents, and chemical stain removers, such as bleaches. Although some stains require only one type of remover, more often two or even more types are needed.

Prompt action is stressed because many stains that can be removed easily when they are fresh are difficult or impossible to remove later, particularly after they have been set by heat.

Identification of the stain is important because the treatment for one kind may set another. If cause can't be exactly determined, it will help to know if it is a greasy stain, a non-greasy stain, or a combination of the two.

Before actually starting to work on the stain there must be assurance that the remover chosen for the job will not damage the fabric. In general, the stain removers recommended in the USDA booklet will not damage the fibers in fabrics or most special fabric finishes, but there are exceptions and those are listed in the description of the various kinds of stain removers and, where necessary, in the directions for removing individual stains.

Damaged fibers are not the only hazard, however. Some stain removers that will not damage fibers may change the appearance of the treated area so that it looks as bad or even worse than the original stain. They may, for example, cause fading or bleeding of dyes, loss of luster, shrinkage or stretching of the fabric. They may remove nonpermanent finishes of designs. Some fabrics, such as satins, crepes, taffetas, silk and rayon moires, gabardines, and velvets, are difficult to remove stains from without some change in appearance.

If the required cleaning substance will damage or change appearance of the fiber, the stained article should be sent to a professional dry cleaner. He has the skill, the special equipment, and the reagents to handle many of the more difficult stains and fabrics.

Copies of "Removing Stains From Fabrics: Home Methods," are available at the University Extension Center, 605 South Massachusetts, or telephone 827-0591.

Iodized Salt

Why have iodized salt? Iodine is one of the trace minerals found within the body in minute amounts. The greatest percentage of iodine is found in thyroid glands where it is utilized as an essential component of the thyroid hormone known as thyroxine. Thyroxine regulates the basal metabolic rate of the body. A deficiency of iodine results in a condition known as simple goiter. The thyroxine hormone level in the blood is lower than when the iodine intake is normal and the thyroid gland becomes over-stimulated in order to compensate for this deficiency. This, in turn, causes enlargement of the gland and swelling within the neck area. Females seem to be more susceptible to this condition than males.

The thyroid hormone is also essential in growth and development. In extreme cases of insufficiency of iodine, children may fail to mature both mentally and physically. Certain stresses, like the adolescent period for young girls and the nine months during pregnancy, increase susceptibility to goiter.

One may hear the term endemic goiter used frequently. This word arises from the fact that the condition is peculiar to those areas of the world where the soil or water is low in iodine content. In America these areas are in the inland states around the Great Lakes, in the upper Mississippi Valley, and in the Northwest. In areas near the sea, the soil and water are generally richer in iodine than are the areas away from the coast. This stems from the fact that waters in these areas come from glaciers instead of the sea and also, high mountains often prevent iodine-rich air from moving to the area so that the soil would have the advantage of it. The amount of iodine in food is directly affected by the amount of iodine found in the water and soil.

Do you use iodized salt?

Market Trends

Meats — In pork the best buys are butts, fresh hams and fully cooked hams. Loins have gone up in price a bit. Chucks and rounds are among the better beef buys.

Poultry prices have declined some. They are the best fresh meat buys. Vegetables and Fruits — The vegetables in plentiful supply include cabbage greens (mustard and turnip tops), iceberg lettuce, leaf lettuce, yellow dry onions, green onions, radishes, spinach and turnips. Home grown rhubarb is plentiful. Bananas are the only fruit in good supply this week.

Take Home Trophy In Bridge Match

Sedalia's fared well in a charity duplicate bridge tournament held in Marshall Tuesday night, attended by some 44 players from Sedalia, Marshall, Malta Bend and Knob Noster.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Trotter, 720 South Beacon, won the first place trophy, and Mrs. Clara Brown, 1605 East Fourth, and Mrs. Lola Koehn, Heritage Village, placed second. They were also presented a trophy.

Proceeds from the tournament go to charitable causes.

Facing Life With New Face

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Deborah Fox sat up in bed for the first time since a 13½-hour operation to rebuild her face, and she smiled.

"They keep shooting me with those needles," she said—her biggest complaint.

"But soon I'll be able to get up and walk around."

Deborah is the 13-year-old Tennessee girl, born virtually without a face, who was operated on by six surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital last Wednesday.

Using some techniques for the first time, they literally changed the configuration of her skull bones, moving her eyes from the sides to the center of her face, and began rebuilding her nose.

It was the 37th—and by far the most major—operation for Deborah, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fox of near Chattanooga.

"Did you read my poetry?" she asked a newsman Tuesday at the hospital.

"Yes."

"Did you like it?"

"Yes."

She referred to a poem she wrote and titled, "Spring."

One verse goes:

"The breath of spring

"Is like a bell that rings

"The crocus and tulip rare

"Spring from the ground so bare."

Deborah, who has an IQ of about 120, never has attended classes a day in her life, but will be in the 8th grade this fall. She has been taught at home.

Dr. Milton Edgerton, chief plastic surgeon on the case and one of the six who performed the operation, said later that Deborah's vision was all right, and Deborah began reading a book that was given to her Tuesday.

Deborah faces more operations, on her nose and mouth.

She hopes to resume her schooling this fall, toward her goal of eventually working with handicapped children.

But, like a typical teen-ager, she laughed with glee when told that children in Baltimore don't get out of school until the end of this week—and Deborah's school already is out for the year.

Ann Landers

Judo Session Puts Hip Out of Joint

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16. My boyfriend, Byron, is 17 and a judo buff. Last night he was practicing some new holds and flipped me over. I landed on my back. The pain was excruciating and I was sure he fractured my spine at least. I told him to leave and I'd think up a story.

I crawled to my folks' bedroom, woke them up and said I had fallen out of bed and to call the doctor. They got the truth out of me fast because they noticed I had my clothes on. The falling-out-of-bed story didn't make any sense.

A bone specialist who lives next door came over right away. He said nothing was broken but I had a dislocated hip.

My folks are so furious with Byron they told me I can't see him any more. Help me, please. He's really neat. — Cynthia

Dear Cyn: He may be neat but he's got no business dislocating your hip. Promise me, no more judo, and I'll ask your folks to give Byron another chance to prove he can behave like a gentleman. And you can help by behaving like a lady.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend who was moving into a smaller place sold me a beautiful Oriental rug. The price I paid was a bargain and we both knew it. This was ten years ago. Last week the friend telephoned and said, "You remember that Oriental rug I sold you, dear. Well, my sister feels since it is a family heirloom it should be kept in the family. I want to buy it back and give it to her."

It would cost me easily four times as much if I were to try to replace that rug today. I'm sure my friend is aware of this. Am I obligated to sell the rug back to her for the price I paid? I value her friendship and I want to do the right thing. — Feeling Rugged

Dear Feeling: Ten years later is pretty darned late to remember that a rug is an heirloom. If the woman valued your friendship she wouldn't have suggested such a thing.

If you don't sell the rug back to her for what you paid, her nose will be out of joint. If you do, yours will be. Take your choice.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my husband dropped out of sight. I had to move in with my mother and go to work to support myself and our two small children.

Last week I ran into my husband at a suburban supermarket where he is employed. I nearly died of the shock. When I asked him where he had been, he said, "My, but you're nosy." I pleaded with him to give me a divorce. His answer was, "Sorry, it's against my religion."

Ann, that bum never saw the inside of a church in his life. I don't know what religion he is talking about. I want to leave the country with a man I've been in love with for over a year. He has offered to introduce me as his wife and change the children's name to his. I am tempted. What do you say? — Estrellita

Dear Es: Don't do it. The bum could have you stopped by the immigration authorities and prevent you from taking his children out of the country. You are still married to him.

Hire a lawyer and free yourself of this loser, legally.

Ugliest Window Display in Town

MARION, Ind. (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce has the ugliest window display in downtown Marion—a four-foot-deep window full of trash.

The chamber, as part of an antilitter campaign, collected milk cartons, cans, newspapers and other debris from one-acre of a Marion park and deposited it in their window.

Butcher Stays Calm

MONTREAL (AP) — Joe Szczepanski isn't easily rattled. When a man walked into his butcher shop with a sawed-off shotgun and demanded the day's receipts, Szczepanski didn't budge.

The thug then fired a shot in the air. Szczepanski, 59, didn't flinch.

The bandit stared at the butcher for a few seconds, then fled. And Szczepanski went back to work.

Things to Worry About

Despite the fact that adults are being blamed today for the faults of their offspring, many mothers and fathers prescribe precise rules of conduct for their youngsters in foul dread the latter may stray from the straight and narrow pathways of life.

One may conclude that today's concern over increased juvenile delinquency and post-juvenile unrest and violence is in about the same proportion as anxiety over prolific tornado-producing storms. Delinquency and storms were numerous 50 years ago, it must be remembered. Today's improved communications, however, make it appear there has been an increase in both. Also there is some substance in the fact that there are more parents and grandparents, too, who are doing more worrying these days because of the increase in population.

What this population increase means is that more potential for juvenile delinquency is developing, and more possible victims are available for rampaging tornadoes. Everything being relative, the multiplication of human beings will just naturally bring about these events.

And if you want to worry about something besides juvenile waywardness, sex and drug promiscuity, there's the problem of how are we going to feed all these people who will be our great-great-great grandchildren. Scientists are not too disturbed about this, however, because by 2056 sustenance, they say, will be provided from such common sources as air, sea, water and ordinary rocks. Imagine trying to communicate with a mouthful of gravel in the process of mastication.

One real worry for today's grandpappies is the possibility present and coming generations will place so much emphasis on raising hell and closing down educational institutions that they won't become educated. Scientists are already indicating apprehension and sounding warnings about this — the very likely shortage of brain power, the decrease in development of men and women of ability, imagination and training to understand the possibilities lying ahead of finding the means of realizing them for the benefit and progress of mankind.

These are some of the threads of discourse one engages in when relatives and friends come to mediate with one another on the old front porch. And that's another comfortable device becoming a thing of the past in the planning and building of modern houses — the old front porch.

Perish the day they are no longer used where they exist, or disappear completely, as a place for discussion and possible solution of some of life's problems.

Rush to Confirm Misses Burger Deal

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — A real estate deal involving Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has just come to light, which illustrates why the Senate should not have rushed his confirmation through with such break-neck speed.

If the stacked Senate Judiciary Committee had given Burger a fraction of the same scrutiny it gave retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren or his proposed predecessor, Abe Fortas, it would have discovered that the new chief justice, while a member of the Court of Appeals, was linked with the lobbyist for the National Automobile Dealers Association in a real estate venture.

Furthermore, the senators would have discovered that the property involved was slum property, a building at 901 East Capitol Street. The lobbyist, Rowland Kirks, apparently having established something of a reputation as a result of his partnership with Justice Burger, went on to develop a long list of other real estate deals. And one of the questions which the Senate should have asked the new chief justice was whether he was a silent partner in any of these deals.

Instead the Senate Judiciary Committee held only one hour and 40 minutes of friendly cross-questioning of Burger, compared with two months consideration of Chief Justice Earl Warren. The committee then spent five minutes considering Burger's qualifications.

Earlier, both Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Leader Dirksen of Illinois had promised careful scrutiny of all future Supreme Court justices. Senator Mansfield promised that the Senate would end the usual practice of "almost automatic acceptance" of presidential nominees.

—Sketchy FBI Check—
A few days later, this talk about careful scrutiny vanished in thin smoke. Various senators, led by Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas, urged that Burger's confirmation go over for a couple of days to permit careful consideration. They were outvoted. Senator Mansfield, who voted for a quickie vote, alibied that the investigation had been done before the Senate hearing, presumably by the FBI.

Obviously, however, the FBI didn't make much of a check. As one senator remarked: "The FBI couldn't follow the tracks of an elephant in the snow when a reactionary judge is involved."

Had the FBI done even the most superficial checking, it would have found from D.C. real estate records for 1964 that Burger and Rowland Kirks had purchased a building at 901 East Capitol Street from Dr. Myron Drapen.

The FBI would have found that Justice Burger paid $47,000 in one lump sum for the property, by check drawn on a Minnesota bank.

If the Senate had not been hellbent for immediate confirmation, it should have asked the new chief justice how he was able to raise immediate cash to the tune of $47,000 and whether anyone helped him raise this rather large sum of money. No mortgage was taken on the house.

Looking Backward

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Pettis County Court's action providing for selling the old Court House, was a commendable move; while the renting of White's Hall for court purposes at $600 per year was perhaps the best that could be done under the circumstances. Our financial condition is growing more favorable, and at the end of two — surely five years hence, we will be abundantly able to erect a new court house commensurate with our future growth and prosperity.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Sedalia Trust Company has moved their banking fixtures from the Trust Company building to the Yunker building at 418 South Ohio avenue, where the bank will be temporarily located for several months during the remodeling of the Trust Co. building.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q — I just air-conditioned my house on my doctor's recommendation. Can I deduct this as a medical expense next year?

A — A part of the cost of the air-conditioning may be considered a medical expense if your doctor recommended it for the treatment of a specific condition or illness. You should obtain a statement from your doctor to this effect and keep it with your tax records.

If the air-conditioning has been recommended by your doctor, then you should calculate what its installation has added to the value of your house. The cost of the air-conditioning in excess of this increase may then be added to your other medical expenses.

Sudden Drug Withdrawal May Cause Side Effects

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What are the effects of cortisone pills? Why must one discontinue them gradually? What are their side effects?

A—All drugs of the cortisone group reduce the pain and swelling due to inflammation. When taken for a prolonged period they may cause moonface, hair on the face, acne, weakening of the bones, especially of the spine, and peptic ulcer. Sudden withdrawal of these drugs is likely to cause headache, loss of appetite and blurring of vision.

Q — Are prednisone and prednisolone the same as cortisone?

A — Prednisone is a synthetic cortisone and prednisolone is a synthetic hydrocortisone. They all have a similar action.

Q—Although you said in a recent column that cancer of the uterus is rare in women who are under 30, my doctor says he has seen cervical cancer in women who are under 20. Please comment.

A—Recent studies have shown that uterine cancer, once thought to be rare in young women, occurs in about 125 of every 100,000 women who are between 15 and 30. It appears that being over 30 is not as important a cause as early sexual activity and early childbearing. Every premarital examination should include a Pap smear.

Q — My daughter lives in South America. She wrote that she has amebiasis. What are the symptoms? Is it serious? Can it be cured?

A—Most amebic infections start with vague abdominal cramps and loose stools. As the disease progresses there may be blood and mucus in the stools and the victim loses weight. In untreated cases, the chief danger is liver abscess. Fortunately, this complication is now rare because specific drugs that will cure the disease are available and well-known to physicians in tropical countries where the disease is common.

Q—How can we find a good family doctor—one who will make a thorough examination and give us a check-up when we're not sick?

A — Since many general practitioners are overworked and must often treat you on the run, finding the type you are looking for may be difficult. Perhaps your best bet would be to have your local medical society give you the names of two or three internists who are known to provide this kind of service.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How long a leap does the kangaroo make?

A—The leaps may be only a few feet long, but a great kangaroo may leap about 25 feet.

Q—Are women admitted to the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, Va?

A—Women are permitted to enter only the graduate and professional courses.

Q—How old was Joan of Arc when she led the French to victory at the siege of Orleans?

A—Joan was 17 years of age when she defeated the army of England's King Henry VI and won a crown for France's Charles VII.

Edward MacDowell, first American composer to gain international recognition, left a legacy in addition to his music, The World Almanac notes. After his death in 1908, MacDowell's summer home in Peterboro, N.H., was transformed by his wife, Marian, into an artists' colony where at least 22 Pulitzer Prize-winning works have been produced.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Excess Salivation Creates a Problem

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I always have so much saliva in my mouth, I can't even talk straight. My friends say they can't understand what I'm saying. One dentist thought that my dentures were too confining; that because there wasn't enough room for free movement of my tongue, my swallowing mechanism and my speech were affected.

A new upper denture was made and my old partial denture was adjusted to make more room in my mouth. It helped a bit but I still collect pools of thick, ropy saliva. I must confess that I have this condition almost as bad when my teeth are out, too. What shall I do? — Merle W.

ANSWER: It's not unusual for new dentures to produce a temporary rise in salivary flow, but rate of flow should return to normal limits in a few days. When excess flow persists, one must look further for cause, although determining cause and dealing with it is not simple.

Salivary flow is affected in many direct and subtle ways. Food increases flow, especially highly seasoned foods and citrus fruits. Nervousness, sex and pain increase flow. An irritation in the stomach can also increase salivation.

Mouth breathing causes dryness. Diseases such as nephritis, diabetes and uremia also cause dryness. There are drugs that purposely or by side reaction influence flow. Depressant drugs such as narcotics, barbiturates and some tranquilizers reduce flow. So do antihistamines.

Age, swallowing reflex and esophageal spasms may also be involved. For instance, some people, especially aged 60 or over, have difficulty swallowing, thus allowing saliva to accumulate; enough sometimes to cause drooling.

What can be done about excessive salivation? Permanent effects are not easy but temporary relief can be obtained thusly:

— Dentures must fit well and should not interfere with speech and normal swallowing.

— Dentures should be kept clean and rinsed often of thick layer of ropy saliva.

— Citrus fruits increase flow of thin saliva, thus decreasing viscosity. This aids swallowing.

— Antihistamines are helpful and relatively safe.

— Other drugs, i.e., bantline and acropine, are commonly used to control flow. These must be prescribed by your doctor.

— Astringent mouthwashes are also helpful.

It's the Law

QUESTION: Can a person who attempts, by means of a scheme or fraudulent device, to obtain telephone service without paying for it be charged with a criminal offense?

FACTS: Willie Brown had overheard his former employer use a credit card in making telephone calls and Willie made a note of the credit card number. Later Willie used his own telephone and made a long distance call to a girl friend on the west coast running up a charge of $25.00. When this was billed to his former employer, the owner of the credit card refused to pay it. The telephone company, checking through the girl friend, learned who had made the call, so they billed Willie. On his refusal to pay they filed a criminal charge. Can Willie be held for criminal action?

ANSWER: The answer is "yes." Section 561.415 of the Missouri Statutes makes it an offense to charge telephone service to an existing telephone number without the consent of the subscriber or to charge telephone service to a false, fictitious, or expired credit card number; using slugs in a pay telephone or using any scheme or fraudulent device to obtain telephone service without paying for it.

"You shouldn't play with strange dogs. You don't know what kind of a dog it is. It might bite you."

The boy turned to his little sister and smiled. "You already have a nice voice," he told her. H. L.

DETROIT FREE PRESS: Breakfast Was Real.

— It comes as a shock that an entire generation has only a vague idea about what a real breakfast is like. The pollsters are even predicting that breakfast may disappear completely.

It's probably a pretty good thing because we should all become fatter than hogs, now that our living patterns have changed so much. But breakfast used to be something.

Breakfast began with buckwheat cakes, browned on a soapstone griddle, drenched with real maple syrup with gobs of unsalted butter melting in it.

Slab bacon was accompanied by two or three eggs fried sunny side up and a golden tide of hash-browned potatoes, turned gently to keep them from breaking.

Then came the crowning touch: Plum pie with cream spooned over it from the white crock that was kept cool in the root cellar, so thick it resisted the ladle.

With a few cups of coffee from the gray granite ware pot that stood always on the back of the range ... that was breakfast, kiddies.

Now we're worried about ... fats, and calories so breakfast is crumpled cardboard in skimmed milk and a glass of canned grapefruit juice.

Computed the Date

The date, 4004 B.C., as the "beginning of creation" did not originate with the King James version of the Bible. It was a date computed in 1654 by Archbishop Ussher of Ireland, who declared that the Creation took place on Oct. 26 in 4004 B.C., basing his claim on a careful study of the Scriptures.

Wehking Strengthens Guards, Adds Depth

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Editors Note: This outline of the 1969-70 State Fair Community College Roadrunners basketball team will be presented in two parts. Today's segment highlights the guard position, tomorrow's will look into the forwards and centers.

Although the start of the 1969-70 State Fair Community College Roadrunners' basketball season is more than five months away, Coach Fred Wehking is already working toward the Dec. 1 home opener with Whiteman Air Force Base in the annual soap scrimmage.

The prospects for the second Roadrunner season are very, very bright.

Coach Wehking had to do two things to make a more competitive team: 1) Recruit some freshman guards to add outside shooting to the SFCC offense, and 2) Recruit depth at both the forward and guard positions.

Another thing Wehking would like to do, even though it is not a necessity for the 69-70 campaign, is recruit another "big man." Both Dave Bratcher and Don Cooke, 6'6" and 6'8" respectively, will be lost to graduation at the completion of the coming season.

The ideal situation if another "big man" could be obtained, would be to move Bratcher out from the post and place him at forward in 2-1-2 offenses or work some offenses off a double post.

Wehking has solved his biggest problem: The lack of outside shooting.

The SFCC mentor admitted he didn't know which was his biggest problem: The lack of outside shooting or the lack of bench strength. He finally conceded that the outside shooting gave him more gray hairs than the lack of bench strength, since the versatility of his squad allowed him to switch forwards into the post, guards to forwards and vice versa.

The first Wehking signed to a letter of intent was Randy Williams, a 5'10" guard from Iberia High School, whose point production from outside netted him a 26.6 average on the year, in addition to being named to the honorable mention all-state class "M" team.

Williams scoring average can be compared to Ron Kiderlin's average of 7.2 that led all State Fair guards during the 68-69 season.

Darrell Gordon was Wehking's next addition to the Roadrunners' back line. He is a graduate of McDonald County High School in Anderson, Mo., who led his senior team with an average of 18 points per contest, still well above any SFCC guard during their first season.

Wehking continued his search for freshman guards. His next acquisition was Bob Goodnight, an area starter for the Smithton Tigers this past season.

Goodnight's scoring average during his senior year was 16 points per game; he also added a total of 11 caroms per contest.

He is a much better than average outside shooter. Wehking feels his biggest asset is his strength, which could add to his defensive power.

Adding more depth to the guard slots, Wehking turned his sights to the "city of the gateway arch" and found Tom Jennewein, a 6'1" guard from Bishop Duborgh High School. Although he only averaged 10 points per contest, his prep coach, Ray Bayens, rates him as one of the most consistent ball players he ever coached.

The combined scoring average of the guards Wehking has added through recruiting is about 18 points per game. The combined scoring average of the 1968-69 SFCC guards was only 3.9 points per game.

This is not to overshadow the four regular guards during the 1968-69 Roadrunner junior college season.

Wehking worked with his guards last year, trying to get them to improve their outside shooting. Nothing paid off until the season was finished.

Jerry Wright, one of the SFCC starting guards last season suddenly started hitting his outside shots. Wright only added a scoring punch of 3.2 points per game during State Fair's quest for the 1968-69 national junior college defensive crown last year. One reason was the type offense that the Roadrunners were forced to use, which was more of a set play offense rather than fast break.

Wright now is hitting from anywhere from mid-court in, not just occasionally, but consistently.

Even though, Wright has vastly improved his shooting, his starting role in the coming season will depend on the ability of the incoming freshmen and his ability to retain his current pace.

Ron Kiderlin, SFCC's other starting guard, will return for his final season of junior college play.

Kiderlin's role last season consisted of running the team both offensively and defensively. His average of 7.2 points per game led all SFCC guards in that department, as well as being the team leader in assists.

Duane Amos, a substitute guard for Wehking last season will also return to add more bench strength this year.

Coach Wehking has also mentioned that he may try Dick Phillips at one of the guard positions before the open of the new season.

Phillips averaged 13.2 points for the State Fair five last year while playing forward. He was without question the best ball handler on the squad, as well as a better than average rebounder for his position.

Tomorrow the 1969-70 Roadrunner prospects will feature Coach Wehking's new additions at forward.

A's Stun Kaycee In Double Header

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The explosive Oakland Athletics swept a doubleheader at Kansas City Wednesday night, shellacking the Royals 16-4 in the opener then taking the nightcap 9-2. Reggie Jackson homered in each game, giving him 26 for the season.

In St. Louis, the Montreal Expos skipped past the Cardinals 5-1 on a nine-hitter by Wegener.

In the first game of the twin bill at Kansas City, Jackson belted a two-run homer in the fifth, his 25th of the season, to pull the A's from behind.

Chuck Dobson, after a rocky start that saw the Royals collect all four runs in the first two innings, settled down to breeze to his seventh victory against five defeats.

Dick Green, who doubled in two runs in the first off loser Dick Drago, 3-6, collected three runs-batted-in as did catcher Larry Haney who had a two-run homer in the ninth.

In the second game, the A's jumped on Jim Rooker, 0-4, for five runs in the first then John "Blue Moon" Odom coasted to his ninth triumph against three setbacks.

Jackson boosted his league-leading home run total to 26 in the sixth inning of the nightcap with a 420-foot poke over the left center fence off Dave Morehead.

Rick Monday was a model of consistency for the Athletics. He had a double, a triple and knocked in two runs in each game.

On the eastern side of Missouri, the Expos quashed the Redbirds' latest attempt to reach .500 ball and marred pitcher Dave Giusti's first appearance in more than a month because of a wrenched back.

Adolfo Phillips tripled off Giusti, 3-5, in the first and scored on a ground out. Montreal scored two runs in the second and another in the third off the Redbird left-hander.

Wegener, 3-3, lost his bid for a shutout when Tim McCarver socked his fourth homer of the season in the ninth.

Ray Washburn, 2-7, was to go the mound for the Cards today (at 12:30 p.m.) against Bill Stoneman, 3-8, for Montreal.

The Royals are idle today in preparation for Friday's doubleheader in Seattle against the Pilots.

Tolan Slides Safely

Cincinnati Reds right fielder Bob Tolan appears to have lost the race with the ball as he dives into second on his arms, but the ball overshot second baseman

Hal Lanier and Tolan ended up at second with a double. The Reds won in front of the Giants' fans, 11-2. (UPI)

Trevino's Knee Healed; Hopes Game is Better

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Lee Trevino is an ex-champion and not too pleased with it. But the pressure is off and the laughing Latino is his old happy-go-lucky self.

He was noticeably somber and subdued and troubled with an aching left knee last week when he failed to make the cut in defense of his United States Open title, eventually won by Orville Moody.

"It's not the pressure," the merry Mexican said today before teeing off in the first round of the $150,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

"It's the responsibility. I felt a lot of personal responsibility. Now there's a new United States Open champion and I don't feel it so much. I've still got a lot of commitments, but I'm going to take some rest after the British Open."

Trevino, a swarthy, grinning character who leaped into the elite group of golf's magic names with his Open triumph a year ago, as usual, made a joke of his knee problems.

There have been reports he may have to have an operation to correct tendon problems in the left knee, suffered when he stepped on a ball about two months ago. Lee scoffed.

"I've got it all taped up," he said.

"But it all depends on how I'm playing. If I'm playing good, it doesn't bother me. If I'm not playing good, it hurts like hell."

How does it feel now?

"Great. It looks like I've got it all back. I'm hitting the driver and the irons good. My putting isn't too good, but I really haven't been trying in practice."

About relinquishing the Open title to Moody, a 14-year Army sergeant:

"I've known him since 1958, when he beat me in an all-service tournament in Japan," the ex-Marine said. "He beat me by 18 strokes and I told him he ought to go on the tour."

"He's a great golfer and a great guy. I'm just as tickled as I can be that he's the new champion."

Does Trevino miss being the champion?

"I guess so. It's the greatest title in the world. You always want to hold one of the major titles."

Ryun, KU Ready

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kansas miler Jim Ryun, winner in what his coach called a four-hour game of Russian roulette, was set for a try at history as the 48th National Collegiate Track and Field Championships opened here today.

"I held my breath for four hours," said Coach Bob Timmons, referring to the scratch meeting held Wednesday to finalize entries in all events.

Ryun, the world's best in the mile run, also wanted to compete in the three-mile event. And his team needed that effort to boost its chances of taking the NCAA team title.

That was the rub. If as many as 30 of the 40-odd initial entries decided to actually run in the three-mile event, officials said there would have to be a qualifying run—and it was scheduled only 15 minutes before the mile preliminaries.

"It was like Russian roulette," Timmons said. "It would have killed Jim's chances in the mile and probably wiped out our team chances. Our kids would never have forgiven me."

"It was all or nothing in that meeting."

The coach waited until the last few minutes to declare Ryun for the three-mile event, and the gamble worked. Only 23 others stayed in.

Should Ryun win both events, he will be the first ever to do it. It will take an almost super-human effort, since the three mile finals are scheduled Saturday only one hour after the mile finals.

The only finals today were in the six-mile run, in which Oscar Moore of Southern Illinois was favored.

Besides Kansas, top contenders for the team title include defending champion Southern California, UCLA, Washington State, Oregon, Brigham Young and host Tennessee.

Sedalia's Bill Utz Is in 19th Place

Bill Utz, colorful IMCA sprint car driver from Sedalia, is currently in 19th place in the national IMCA sprint car divisional point standings.

Utz's total point production to date is 275.

The current leader in IMCA sprint competition is Darl Harrison; he has netted 970 points thus far. Don Mack, Jerry Richert, Dick Gaines and Bobby Adamson round out the top five positions.

St. John's Won't Let 'Louie' Go

NEW YORK (AP) — For $175,000, the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association lured Lou Carnesecca away from the collegiate coaching ranks, but they will have to wait for one year for the St. John's, N.Y. coach to take over.

Carnesecca, 44, signed a five-year contract with the ABA club Wednesday for a reported $35,000 per season. The colorful Louie will also be general manager and vice president of the Nets, starting with the 1970-71 season.

"This was an opportunity I just couldn't pass up," Carnesecca said. "It looks like a chance to get in on the ground floor of something that could grow into something pretty good."

For the coming 1969-70 season the Nets coaching job will be held by York Larese, a former North Carolina University player, who also played under Carnesecca in high school.

Carnesecca has one year remaining on a five-year pact at St. John's, and although offered a release by the university, he said he would honor his contract.

The Nets were coached by Max Zaslofsky during their first two years. He quit at the end of last season in which the New York team finished last in the East Division.

Carnesecca, in his four years at St. John's, registered an 83-27 record and his Redmen reached post-season playoffs in all four seasons.

Pieces of Candles Take on a New Look

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY and ELSA—Bits and pieces of old candles can be melted down and poured into muffin tins. Save the wicks and put them into the wax as it starts to cool. These can be floated, with flowers or leaves, in a bowl of water to make a pretty table decoration. Care should be taken in melting candles. I find the safest way is to put them in a clean can placed in boiling water.—MRS. R. Y. B.

DEAR POLLY—Please tell Elsa that she can use her candle stubs for kindling in the barbecue or fireplace. Just light a few and tuck them in the charcoal, wood or whatever. They do not flare up and last longer than newspaper.—KATHY

DEAR POLLY—I save all types of wax candles, the wax used on top of homemade jelly and even drippings from candles. When I get enough, I melt them in a coffee can and pour this melted wax into an empty soup can, using a string for the wick. I tie a pencil to the top of the wick and lay it across the center of the wax to hold the wick in the middle of the candle. After several days I run water over the can and the candle slips out. It helps to cut out the bottom of the can so the candle slips out. Be sure to put the coffee can in a skillet of water while the wax melts to prevent it from catching on fire. Any type of mold can be used. Milk cartons and tubes from paper rolls are also good.—MARIE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My rabbit fur coat sheds so I returned it to the store where I bought it but they said they could do nothing about it. I tried two different cleaners on it but nothing I do helps this beautiful coat. Can someone help me?—MRS. J. P.

DEAR POLLY—To keep facial tissues carried in my purse neat and clean I use a plastic sandwich bag, fold a small bunch of tissues in it and when one is needed I open my bag and take one from the center fold. Thank you for all the Pointers you have passed on through the column.—MRS. B. E. Z.

Perils of Drugs Explained To Optimists By an Expert

Fred Benson, Overland Park, Kan., who addressed the Optimist Club at noon Tuesday at State Fair Restaurant, began with the story of Eddie. Benson's appearance here was sponsored by the speakers bureau of Smith, Kline & French Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa.

Eddie's family was above the average intellectually. A sister was a senior in college and a brother had graduated and launched a successful career. But Eddie dropped out of high school in his sophomore year. The reason—drugs.

In Wrong Crowd

A shy, sensitive youngster, Eddie lacked self confidence and was easily influenced. He fell into a group that smoked marijuana, and within three months had gone to LSD. His excellent grades began to slip, he dropped out of school, and found himself at the crossroads. All of his friends who did not use drugs abandoned him. What he would do now would dictate his future.

This story brought Benson up to his topic for the day, "Drug Abuse: Game Without Winners." Drug abuse, said Benson, isn't a new problem; in one form or another it goes back as far as recorded history. Recently, however, it has taken a new and disturbing turn, he said. Where a few years ago it was chiefly a slums problem, today it is reaching out into the suburbs and to colleges and high schools, touching people of all income levels and all social classes.

Drugs that have important medical uses often have very harmful effects if abused, he said. The list is practically endless, Benson explained, containing many common household items, such as nutmeg. In prison kitchens, he said, nutmeg is kept under lock and key. Even morning glory seeds can cause hallucinations, he said.

Drugs creating most problems fall into four main categories: narcotics, depressants, stimulants and hallucinogens.

Used in Medicine

Opium, a narcotic, is one of the oldest and most valued drugs known to medicine, Benson explained. Morphine, derived from opium, is so effective in relieving pain it is indispensable to the physician. Heroin is derived from morphine. Anyone who likes the effect of morphine and tries it repeatedly finds himself in the grip of a habit almost impossible to break, and larger and larger amounts are needed.

Habit means dependence, and this can be either physical or psychological, he said. Physical dependence means the body builds up a true need for the drug and when it is withdrawn, severe symptoms follow, such as sweating, nausea, tremors or convulsions. Psychological dependence, he said, means a craving and need for a particular drug but no withdrawal symptoms if it is denied.

Heroin is the main drug used by narcotic addicts, and although its manufacture is forbidden by law in this country, it is smuggled across the border or brought in from major ports, despite the efforts of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, Benson said.

Not All Good

Speaking of sedatives, Benson told of the aid of the sleeping pill for relief of misery and aid to sleeping. Yet these friendly drugs can also be enemies and they too, can create dependency, he added. To become dependent on barbiturates it is necessary to take excessive doses over a long time beyond what a physician would prescribe, he said. Those who take this may find their mental processes seriously impaired, and when deprived they often become very ill.

Another drug is just the opposite of narcotics and sedatives—the stimulant. One is amphetamine, used in medicine for appetite control, overcoming mild depression, treating Parkinson's Disease and behavior problems in children. It is a mood-elevating drug that offsets fatigue and increases alertness, he said. It is sometimes used by truck drivers to stay awake for long hours or abused by students cramming for exams. But staying awake for days eventually tires the systems causing dizziness, hallucinations and mental confusion.

The last category—hallucinogens—have no established medical use, he said. One of the most commonly abused of these drugs is marijuana. The user experiences a feeling of well being, Benson stated. His body image may seem distorted and there is increased awareness and sensitivity to sound. There is a marked impairment of judgment and motor skills, and driving an automobile could be very dangerous, he said. Marijuana is unpredictable and does cause sensory distortions.

Made at Home

LSD, the most powerful hallucinogen of all, Benson explained, is a colorless, tasteless, odorless powder that dissolves in water and is no longer legitimately manufactured. It comes from home laboratories and other illegal sources. It is the inability to cope with LSD that causes a "bad trip" or "freak-out," the speaker said.

A bad trip is sheer panic, but if the user is able to get medical help he might be talked down. Sometimes an injection of a tranquilizer is required. It is dangerous and people under its influence have walked into the headlights of a moving auto or fallen from windows, thinking they could fly. It is chiefly dangerous because of the permanent harm it can do to the mind, Benson said.

Today's young people have more money to spend on everything, including drugs, Benson remarked. The adult generation points the blame to itself through over-permissiveness or parental neglect, parents too busy to concern themselves with the problems of their children, or the opposite extreme—telling youngsters things about drugs that aren't true, he said.

The solution for the abuse of drugs has two basic aspects, legislation and education, Benson asserted.

Benson urged that responsible citizens learn something about the problem in the community. Drug abuse, he emphasized, is a game without winners.

The speaker was introduced by Clinton Black, program chairman.

The Rev. Charles Hendrickson, president, presided over the meeting and gave the invocation.

Achieves His Goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chief Justice Earl Warren will leave the Supreme Court with a major goal unaccomplished: Having the justices bind themselves to a code of ethics.

With a bit of grumbling, the U.S. Judicial Conference adopted at Warren's behest earlier this month rules requiring federal judges to forsake off-bench compensation and to file annual financial statements.

This code, a byproduct of Abe Fortas' resignation from the court, does not apply to the justices.

A statement issued by the court Tuesday said the chief justice had suggested "the propriety of the justices taking similar action" at a conference last Friday.

But, the statement added, the subject was put off until next term by decision of "a majority." The statement did not say how Warren and his eight associates lined up.

The Court's final public session under Warren is Monday. Warren E. Burger will be sworn in to succeed him and the Warren Court will pass into history. The resignation of Fortas after accepting the first $20,000 payment of a lifetime fee from the Wolfson Family Foundation cast a shadow over the Court.

However, the statement said "some of the justices"—it did not say which ones—urged that no action be taken now because the term is almost over, a new chief justice is joining the court and a replacement for Fortas is to be named.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., it was learned recently, has canceled speeches, sold stock bequeathed by his mother and given up his interest in a real estate venture in which Fortas participated.
